Nesurasa Rasanayagam died in Gampelen repatriation camp

Nesurasa Rasanayagam and all residents of "return camps" are brought to the existential edge: with eight francs per day, people are forced to stay in Gampelen. Thus people are systematically excluded from society and structurally isolated. This economic violence makes people immobile and invisible. The asylum regime forces us people from the Global South to stay in the camps for years, we neither get the right to stay in Switzerland, nor are we allowed to apply for asylum in another country because of the Dublin agreement.

The "return camps" are open prisons on the fringes of society! We carry our anger and sorrow to the streets!
